Allyson Hauck - Associate

Practice Areas: Labor and Employment Litigation

Experience

Allyson Hauck joined the firm in 2007. She practices in the areas of Labor Relations and Labor Law, focusing on contract grievances, contract negotiations, and unfair labor practice charges. She also practices in the employment counseling and litigation areas, focusing on discrimination and harassment litigation and conducting trainings for clients on AB 1825 Workplace Harassment Training for Supervisors. In addition to the firm's public entity clients, Allyson represents many of the firm's non-profit clients, providing labor and employment advice as well as advice on a variety of legal issues unique to non-profit organizations.

Related Experience

Allyson began her legal career working at a litigation firm in Boston, Massachusetts on public interest issues that included lead paint, pharmaceutical and toxic exposure litigation. She also has a background in policy and government, working on alcohol, tobacco and drug policy for a national public health research organization, and working on staff for United States Senator Dianne Feinstein and then California State Senator Jackie Speier. During law school, Allyson worked as a clerk for the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals, as a legal intern for labor law firm in New York City, and as an advocate for sexual assault and domestic violence survivors at the Boston Medical Center Emergency Room and Dorchester District Court Restraining Order Department.
